RASCALLY BOND SCHEMERS LIKELY TO BE CURBED.

Senator Fassett's Bill on Co-operative and Building and Loan Associations.

TO, ABOLISH LOTTERIES.

New Jersey Aronsed by the Herald's Exposures, but Secretary Kelsey Says They Are Ontside the Pale of the Laws of That State.

The interesting sketch of the history of the Fam-By Fund Society, given in yesterday's HERALD, brought to the office a couple of letters in reference to the widow of Horace B. Russ, whose sad case had been mentioned.

"A Member of the Old Guard," to which organization Russ belonged, says that Vice President Knight L. Clapp, who runs the Home Benefit Association in the same building, No. 187 Broadway, induced her to settle for $1,000, in the hope that the company might be able to pay her the other $9,000

Mrs. Russ, it seems, is now almost destitute. She expended the $1,000 in funeral and other expenses, paying bills incurred during her husband's sickness. She and her two children are now without a dollar, so the HEBALD is advised.

"The HERALD is the only paper to protect the people from such frauds," adds a member of the Old Guard.

Apropos of the "Family Fund" and Durland's "Mutual Savings" is the following letter, sent to the HERALD from Vineland, N. J., by "E. N. C.," who encloses his card:-

A BLIND FOOL.
"Having seen your various articles on bogus savings fund schemes, &c., I send you herewith the paperissued by 'The Mutual One Year Benefit Order,' which is only one of a dozen similar institutions working here. I think this is right in line with others you are working up. While many may go blindly into these institutions I think there are more who know the risk they are taking, but who are willing to assume it in hopes of getting out in time. This fosters an unhealthy desire to get something for nothing, en-courages idleness if not recklessness, and is a menace to all legitimate business and to the morals of the community. A law should be enacted to prevent these with all other lottery enterprises."

The desire of this correspondent is likely to be gratified, for a bill has just been introduced at Albany which will put some check on these rockless schemes. The bill relates to the building and less schemes. The bill relates to the building and loan associations, and appears to be very favorable to the local associations. This will draw to Albany all the advecates of the hational associations with their easily earned money bags. The "bond" promoters will also in all probability disgorge in the hope of staying their death warrant. The bill is Senator J. Sloat Fassoti's and as No. 96 was introduced by him into the Senate. In the assembly it is No. 310 and was introduced by John Jonnolly, of the Nineteenth district, it provides or the promotion and management of co-operative avings and loan associations. One of its provisions repeals the act of 1851, under which the "bond" swindles had incorporated.

The first section makes fits incumbent upon the acceptorators to be residents of this State and dises the number from nine to fifteen. The section says.—

The first section makes its incumbent upon the accorporators to be residents of this State and sizes the number from mine to fifteen. The section says:—

'the object and purpose of such associations shall be to purage industry, frequity, home building and says among its members; the accumulation of say, the leasting of such accomulations to its members, the repayment to each member of his sayings when they have accumulated to a certain sum, or at any time when he shall desire the same or the association shall desire to repay the same.

Under the present law incorporators are required to file their articles of association only with the County (lork of the county in which they organize, and not with the Secretary of State. The first the State Banking Department knew about such societies was a letter from somebody in a distant State who had been approached by an agent inquiring about the standing of the concern. In the Fassett bill the incorporators are compelled to file their arcles with the Secretary of State, who will give a certificate, to be filed in the County Glerk's office. There is another excellent provision in the Fassett bill—that no officers shall be paid compensation by salary, fees, expenses or otherwise for soliciting the sale of shares of the association. We have soon that most of Durland's directors who were not dummines were also agents and receiving fat fees for selling bonds. The practice is the same in nearly all similar associations.

Another good thing is that all associations or converted was a fact of the provision of the same in nearly all similar associations.

ceiving fat fees for selling bonds. The practice is the same in nearly all similar associations.

CLOCKE SUBERVISION.

Another good thing is that all associations organized under the Fassett act shall be subject to visitation and examination at all times by the Superintendent of the Banking Department, his deputies or duly appointed agents.

At present the State Department cannot step in until an association has been running one year, except five stockholders make a special application. A good deal of crocked work may be done within a year and the tracks covered up before an official examination is ordered.

The proposed new act, however, is not retroactive—it does not wipe out the associations formed under the act of 1851. So far, or until the Hanalotok up the matter, the fraudulent "bond" companies have enjoyed immunity. The Attorney iseneral is now aware of the true nature of their business and is moving against them.

The Henalo's exposures have aroused the Jerseymen. As a result Secretary of State Henry C. Kelsey, of New Jersey, has been almost overwhelmed by letters or inquiry about various "orders." Among them are the "Universal Order of Co-operation," the "Advance Beneficial Order," the "Earnest Workers" (what a uame!) and the "Order of the World." Letters, too, are pouring in to him from the West about the "Universal Order of Co-operation," which has flooded South Jersey with certiincates.

Letters, too, are pouring in to him from the West about the "Chiversal Order of Co-operation," which has shooded South Jersey with certification. Secretary Kelsey said vosterday that these bond companies we written and the services of the New Jersey Law. BULLDOXING.

This order was chartered in New Jersey in October, 1890, and its articles are so framed as to deceive, its real object is the bond lottery scheme. It promises to pay $100 in four months for a total expenditure of $30. The five dollar initiation fee and the one dollar quarterly dues go into the pockets of the promoters. They have the audacity to compel each member to bring into the order two members "within two weeks of the lat or 15th of the monts," otherwise $50 will be deducted from the member's certificate "at maturity." In other words, I am compelled to get two persons, one of whom must get another, three in all, to contribute enough to give me $100 at the end of seventeen weeks, and incidentally $36 into that mysterious "expanse fund."

"expense fund."

Here is one section from the bylaws which is alone sufficient to condemn the association.—"The supreme Body shall be composed of its elective officers, incorporators and representatives. The incorporators shall be in emelabors, each of whom shall be entitled to a voice and a role in the proceedings." rportions shall be tife meiabers, such that to a with and a role in the process Not much co-operation in that.

BROKER IVES ON BAIL.

When Theodore Ives, broker, woke up in the Stapleton police station yesterday morning he expressed great surprise at finding himself there, and when told that he had pulled off part of his clothing and started to climb over the guard rail of the Staten Island ferry boat Southfield he expressed great amazement at the news.

"What will my wife and children say when they hear of my disgrace?" he cried. "How came I to do such a thing?"

"I only took two or three drinks." he said. "I remember finding myself in the company of a "I only took two or three drinks." he said. "I remember finding myself in the company of a policeman, but nothing of the events which are said to have taken place on the ferryboat. The address I gave last night is correct, for I have a room at Mrs. Casey's in Forty-minth street. My wife and family are in New York."

Mr. Ives was taken to Edgewater and arraigned before Justice Casey. Mr. Carrington H. Raymond.

ANN O'DELIA TO THE RESCUE.

SHE THREATENS TO TAKE THE LAW IN HER OWN

HANDS TO SAVE LUTHER R. MARSH. Mme. Ann O'Delia Diss Debar, erstwnile daughter of Lola Montez and some time princess, has decided to fir to the rescue of Luther R. Marsh, who is emeshed, as related in the HERALD, by a number of spiritualistic mediums at Middletown, N. Y.

Princess Ann O'Delia denies all the past. Justice was miscarried in her case, she says, and now that Luther R. Marsh has fallen under the influence of other spiritualists the syloh-like Aun is anxious to

The Dies Debar has no further interest in Luther R. Marsh, she told me yesterday, but she cannot stand idly by while on the one hand the venerable lawyer is being plundered by the Huyler crew and on the other he is about to do a wrong to one of his own kin.

She disclaims in terms of vigorous denunciation all connection with the Huylers and Archers, and to right a wrong she tells her story to the Herald.

This is the way the lissome 250 pound ex-princess told it to me :-

"In reference to the so-called spiritualistic phenomena by which Luther R. Marsh is so terribly beset at Middletown, N. Y.," she began, "I can only denounce all such phases of mediumship can only denounce all such phases of mediumship as fraudulent and worthy of the severest penalty of the law. I am actuated by no motives of resentment and have no personal ends to serve or excuses to older in making this statement. I am still a devoted spiritualist so far as the divine truth of logic and philosophy shall cover the phenomena of spiritualism.'

After these preliminary remarks the Diss Debar passed to catch her breath, and then continued:—

"Time works many changes. Think of this contrast. A few months ago every one believed that I was defrauding Mr. Marsh. Now a gentleman comes to me and requests that I save Mr. Marsh from the toils of the adventurers at Middletown. Strange, is it not, that they should ask me to rescue him?"

"Where is that worthy and philanthropic body of men—the New York Bar Association—who rushed so gallantity to rescue Mr. Marsh from my open day clutch. Why do they not seek to release him from the dark cabinet tricks and midnight orgies of the Middletown crew?"

I asked the Diss Debar for the name of the gentleman who had basought her to resone Mr. Marsh from the vultures.

"His name is A. P. Donaldson," she replied. "Ho Middletown crew?"

I asked the Diss Debar for the name of the gentleman who had basought her to resone Mr. Marsh from the vultures.

"His name is A. P. Donaldson," she replied. "He is not a spiritualist. He lives at Middletown and thas been investigating the actions of these Huylers and Archers,"

"EWELS FOR APELAIDE NELLSON.

"All the claims of these people are contrary to philosophy and reason. Why, only a few nighteago the spirit of the beautous Adelaide Nelison materialized from a cabinet in a darkened room at Middletown. She appeared presumably as an angel of light, as an immortal and glorifed spirit of God. She made an astonishing request for the jewels, rich and rare, belonging to the late Mrs. Jennic Marsh. These were graciously surrendored by Mr. Marsh.

"They were glorious gems," added the Diss Debar mournfully. "I have often had them in my possession. The spirit of Nelson informed Mr. Marsh that the jewels were well known in the spirit land.

"They are now gone to deck the cheecal form of the fair Adelaide. She requested them that she might appear to better advantage among other distinguished spooks, who were about to give a grand garden party on our sister planet, Venus.

"So much for the jewels. I have the best advice possible that all Mr. Marsh's available property will domaterialize in the same manner.

"Mr. Marsh may find that Messre. Huyler, Archer & Co., will not stand the brunt of an imprisonment to save him from incarceration in a innatic. I preferred to suffer the indignity of immurement rather than that he should end his honored career in an asylum.

IN THE INTERFET OF JUSTICE.

"Why am I led to make these statements?" said the Madame in reply to such a question. "I have certain interests to protect. Under the will of Mrs. Jennie Marsh, I was appointed a trustee for Donglass A. Stewart, her nephew and sole heir. The estate amounts to upward of $1,500,000.

"Mr. Marsh is so influenced by the people in whose power he is that he allows Donglass to exist

"My sensitive organism revolts at such a proceeding," exclaimed Princess Ann O'Delia, patholically, "it is fraudulent. I never exhibited for money, and no money or bonds have ever passed between me and Luther R. Marsh.
"All lask is that justice be done to poor simple minded Douglass A. Stewart. He is entitled to a share of his aunt's estate. Will no one help him to secure it? Must lack, or will not the philanthropists of the New York Bar Association hasten to the rescue of poor misguided and ill advised Luther Marsh?"

THOSE CLERICAL QUESTIONS.

ARCHBISHOP CORRIGAN DID NOT SEND THEM OUT-NO SIGNIFICANCE.

The propositions sent out to Catholic priests, which questions are to be discussed at the Diocesan Conference on February 19, have been much misunderstood.

About saventy-five covers were laid. The president of the club, Edwin B. Goodell, presided and Starr J. Murphy acted as toastmaster.

In welcoming the guests of the evening Mr. Goodel said it had been hoped that a gentleman somewhat known to fame who had his birthplace in Essex county, would be present. He need hardly say that he referred to the man who wrote the Tariff Reform message to the Fiftieth Congress, Grover Claveland.
